MARTINAMEL is a hard setting lacquer, carefully applied, to prevent tarnishing of brass finished instruments by moisture in the atmosphere. Several coats are carefully applied to insure maximum durability, but the very nature of the material, the extreme difficulty in applying it evenly to the irregular surfaces of a band instrument and the variability of conditions to which an instrument is subjected after it leaves the dealer and goes into use, makes it impossible for us to guarantee this finish. Any dealer or player who orders an instrument in this finish must understand these conditions and that the factory cannot accept responsibility for any failure of this finish to stand up under use.

"A musical instrument should always be judged on its performance rather than on its finish."
